Poetry Contest

The 18th Annual Poetry Contest is underway! Entries must be submitted by February 28, 2017. The contest is open to all ages, contestants may submit up to two poems, and twenty winners will be chosen (ten from each age group—up to 8th grade and 9th grade to adult). Visit www.lclibs.org/lebanon/contests for complete rules and an entry form.

The library will also host a Celebration of Poetry event April 17, 2017. Winners will have an opportunity to read their winning poem aloud, and bound copies of the winning entries will be available to order.

Create your own story and pictures.

Write & Illustrate Your Own Book Contest

The 2017 Write & Illustrate Your Own Book Contest is also underway! The contest is open to all students in grades one through five who live or attend school in Lebanon County. Each student may submit one entry. One winner will be chosen from each grade level. Bound copies of the winning entries will be available to order. The deadline for entries is March 24, 2017 at 8pm.

Book Blurbs...by Victor Commisso

One Man By Andrew Gross

A renowned Polish scientist has been thrown into a Nazi concentration camp. The Allies want him and they're willing to mount a very daring rescue to get him out.

Cakewalk By Rita Mae Brown

Set in small town America in 1920, the Great War is over and the country is in an exuberant mood. Jazz, flappers, wild parties, whiskey... and prohibition. Not a lot of plot in this book, but it really captures life at a pivotal time.

Sinner Man By Lawrence Block

Block's first crime novel, written around 1960 but never published. A man facing murder charges pulls a disappearing act. He's got a new name and a very, very different life. And he's hiding in plain sight. A good man-on-the-run tale.
